

Ducks More Plentiful This Season

Preliminary reports in Hempstead county indicate ducks will be more plentiful than in the last several years when the 1957 shooting season opens Thursday, November 7.

The Star's editor made the photograph above at 4 p. m. last Thursday from blind No. 103 in Grassy Lake (Hempstead County Hunting Club), as guest of B. W. Edwards.

Several flights came over during a three-hour photographic venture which terminated at 5 p. m. owing to the dwindling light—just about the time the ducks should have started arriving in force. Ducks were plentiful at Grassy Lake the night before, the club reported.

The picture shows a flight of pintails snapped through a hole in the woods.

Main interest this duck season, of course, will be centered in the public Bois d'Arc Hunting Preserve now being completed by the Game & Fish Commission about 12 miles west of Hope just south of U. S. 67 highway. While the preserve is not yet officially completed plenty of water has backed up in the sloughs and the project will be used by the public this season.

Have to Have That Spark to Make Show Business

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Much has been said about how tough it is to get started in show business today.

The standard gag is that it is about as easy as it is for a jockey to play center on a top college basketball team.

But just what are the real odds against a beginner who yearns to earn a living in the spotlight?

A man who has some actual figures on this subject is Ted Mack, owner of "The Original Amateur Hour," a hardy NBC-TV network perennial of radio and television that will celebrate its 24th birthday next March.

Over the years we have spent four million dollars auditioning some 500,000 amateurs," said Mack. "Of these about 17,000—or one in 53—appeared on our show. But only about 3,000—or one in 200—went on to become professional performers."

"Not all of these, of course, remained permanently in show business. Some married and got out. Others, probably, got smart and got out.

"Perhaps no more than 1 in 10,000—and probably not that many—went on to become real stars."

Not all of the amateurs, however, burn with a desire to become professionals. About 20 per cent say they wouldn't accept a regular show career. They merely want to appear on a network show once.

"It's simply feather in their cap," explained Mack. "The show still auditions some 500 to 1,500 amateur aspirants a week."

"About 70 per cent are singers," said Ted, "and it has been that way since the show began. About 25 per cent are dancers or instrumentalists, and the rest are novelty groups—such as acrobats, jugglers, magicians and human beings."

Delay Sought in Ruling on L. R. Ordinance

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The city of Little Rock today asked for an indefinite delay in a federal court suit in which the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is attacking a municipal ordinance designed to make the association reveal its confidential records.

The requested postponement would be effective until Arkansas state courts had had an opportunity to pass on validity of the ordinance adopted last month by the City Council of this integration-troubled city.

The motion was filed by City Attorney O. D. Longstreth Jr. on behalf of Mayor Woodrow Wilson Mann.

It was Mann who ordered the NAACP and three pro-segregationist organizations to comply with a recently-passed city ordinance which requires certain groups to file membership and financial data.

The segregationist groups complied, but the NAACP, which already had filed its federal suit, did not.

Two NAACP leaders, Mrs. L. C. Bates, the state president, and the Rev. J. C. Cronshaw, the local president, were arrested for non-compliance.

They were released on $300 bond each and their hearings were set today for Dec. 3 in Municipal Court.

The stay motion in U. S. District Court was filed shortly after Judge Roy W. Harper of St. Louis had re-set until 4:30 p. m. (CST) a scheduled hearing on a motion of the NAACP for a temporary restraining order against enforcement of the city ordinance.

Harper was unable to get to the case this morning because of other suits on his docket.

The Little Rock ordinance, obviously, was aimed at the NAACP although no organizations were specified.

However, Mann, who has been leading critic of Gov. Orval Faubus in the current integration controversy, invoked it also against the segregationist groups.

The City Council, which has sided with Faubus in his stand against the federal government's troop-enforced integration at Central High School, ordered the arrest of all NAACP officers who could be found. It took the action immediately after the deadline for submitting the requested data passed last week. Mann was out of the city at the time.

Presumably, Judge Harper will take up first this afternoon Longstreth's motion for a delay.

Pressure High to Pool West Brainpower

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia's launching of a second satellite added urgency today to the Eisenhower administration's slowly developing drive for a pooling of Western scientific brainpower and greater cooperation among Allied nations.

A new Soviet achievement in outer space flight had been anticipated following the launching of the first satellite a month ago and was somewhat discounted in advance. Nevertheless, officials recognized that it afforded fresh evidence of Russia's lead in the missile field—a matter of great military as well as scientific significance.

The impact of this second rocket triumph on world opinion is offset somewhat, however, by the Moscow announcement Saturday that Marshal Georgi Zhukov had been stripped of all his political authority as well as the position of defense minister which he had lost a week ago.

The United States immediately pointed up Zhukov's ouster as evidence of the existence of "stresses and strains" in the Soviet system.

Not all of the amateurs, however, burn with a desire to become professionals. About 20 per cent say they wouldn't accept a regular show career. They merely want to appear on a network show once.

"It's simply feather in their cap," explained Mack. "The show still auditions some 500 to 1,500 amateur aspirants a week."

Other Army Officers May Be Purged

By HAROLD K. MILKS

MOSCOW (AP)—The position of Nikita Khrushchev as top man in the Soviet Union appeared unchallengeable today following the political disgrace of Marshal Georgi Zhukov.

Military leaders and journals of the armed forces were quick to endorse the expulsion of the former Defense Minister from the Soviet Communist party's Central Committee and from its ruling Presidium.

Crowds jamming Moscow streets in advance of the celebration Thursday of the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution displayed little interest in the fate of the World War II hero. Their attention appeared captured by the launching of Sputnik II, the preparations for the two-day anniversary holiday, and reductions in the price of pork, ducks and geese.

The announcement of the marshal's degradation had been expected since soon after his dismissal from the post of defense minister was revealed Oct. 26. The party Central Committee finally announced Saturday night that he had been stripped of his party posts.

The announcement added that he would be given a new job but did not say what it would be. Presumably he will get some obscure post in a remote location, as V. M. Molotov and Georgi Malenkov did following their similar disgrace last summer.

Nashville Death Makes State Toll 19

By The Associated Press

Weekend highway accidents—including a bus-car collision near Nashville—pushed Arkansas' death toll to 19 for the week which ended midnight Sunday.

Eleven persons were killed in traffic accidents and six in fires. One died in a fall and another from asphyxiation.

The bus-car collision last night killed one woman. Seven of the eight passengers suffered minor injuries.

State Trooper Jack McKinley identified the dead woman as Mrs. Margaret Owens, 42, who operated a hotel and coffee shop at Murfreesboro.

McKinley said Mrs. Owens was driving alone in a car which swerved toward the opposite side of state Highway 27 about nine miles northeast of Nashville.

As the car skidded along the highway while Mrs. Owens apparently tried to regain control, McKinley said, it was struck broadside by the bus.

The trooper said the bus "just ran over" the automobile, which crumpled the underside of the bus and hurled passengers from their seats. All the passengers were treated at a Nashville hospital and released.

The bus driver was Richard K. Garrett, 55, of Dallas, Tex. He was bound from Texarkana to Hot Springs.

Mrs. Owens' survivors include her husband, Jimmy.

Bert Elmer Parker, 55, of Van Buren, was injured fatally Saturday night when an automobile ran off a road and plunged down a 30-foot slope on the outskirts of Fort Smith.

Dolly O. Johnson, 27, of Biggers, Ark., died when the car he was driving rolled off a state Highway 115 curve three miles north of Potholomus. Five other men in the car were injured, none critically.

Expert Says Object in Texas Was Space Craft

LEVELLANDO Tex., (UP)—A man who has spent 20 years studying aerial phenomena said today he believes a mysterious object seen in West Texas and New Mexico "was a space craft from one of the neighboring planets."

The expert is James A. Lee of Abilene, Tex., a member of the National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena and a director of Interplanetary Space Patrol, a West Texas organization which investigates "flying saucers" and similar objects.

Lee rushed here Sunday upon hearing of the latest object seen by at least nine persons in two states.

The egg-shaped object, described as about 200 feet long and a brilliant red, was glimpsed by at least five persons in the Levellando area, including the sheriff, three persons at Midland and another at Clovis, N. M.

Says It Was On Road
James D. Long of Waco said he was driving on a farm-to-market road west of Levellando at 1:15 a. m. Sunday when he encountered the object sitting in the road.

He said it was oval-shaped, about 200 feet long and glowed like a neon sign. He got out of his car about 200 feet away to investigate, but when he did the object suddenly took off with a roar straight up into the air.

Long said his engine coughed and died and his headlights suddenly went out. When he got his car started, he hurried back to town.

Two other persons said they saw the object in the Levellando area about an hour earlier. Both Pedro Suello and Novell E. Wright said the object passed over their cars with a roar like thunder. The engines of their cars died and the headlights went out, too.

Passed Over Car
Sheriff Weyl Clem and his deputy, Pat McCullough, spotted the object streaking across the sky in front of their car.

The ground observer corps at Midland reported that an unidentified mother and her two children saw "a large object of bluish color flying west and very low" early Saturday night.

Odin Echols, owner of radio station KCLV in Clovis, N. M., said he "saw a streak of light like a fire ball" moving in a southeasterly direction about 8 p. m. Saturday.

"I think it's a space craft from one of the neighboring planets," he declared.

He said he will make a report of his investigation to Washington.

Fears Nixon Going Too Fast and Soon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some friendly politicians are beginning to believe Vice President Nixon may be traveling too fast too early in his drive for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination.

Nixon received boosts last week from former New York Governor Thomas E. Dewey's description of him as a "superb" candidate, from Sen. William F. Knowland's reported decision not to enter presidential primaries outside California, and from California Gov. Goodwin Knight's apparent plan to avoid "a decisive showdown fight with Knowland for the state's nomination for governor."

Nixon is coming to look more and more like the man to beat for the nomination.

That may be a satisfying spot in some circumstances. But many politicians contend that the early aspirant arrives at that point the earlier he becomes a target for political sniping and the more time he gives his enemies to combine against him.

In some respects, that it what happened to the late Sen. Robert A. Taft prior to 1952. Taft drew so much attention to himself that he became widely known as "Mr. Republican." He was the man to beat, and when Taft's critics were given the time to bring Dwight D. Eisenhower around to a receptive mood, they had the man to beat the Ohio senator.

Traveling Dog Apparently Still Alive

By ROY ESSOYAN

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union reported today that its space-traveling dog was faring well inside the half-ton rocket satellite circling the earth just over 1,000 miles out in space.

Moscow radio said the small, fluffy-haired passenger inside Sputnik II survived the shock of being blasted into space and her breathing, heartbeat and blood pressure were normal.

Housed in an air-conditioned cage the dog hurtled around the earth at a speed of 17,000 miles an hour.

Signals from two radios in the satellite are sending scientific data about the dog's reactions and space conditions. The Russians said. Monitors picked up a "beep, beep" on one frequency and a hissing sound from another.

As the spectacular achievement signaled the opening of the era of space travel, a Soviet scientist Continued on Page Three

Soviets Prove Technical Know How to World

By RICHARD WESLEY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sputnik II, whirling more than 1,000 miles out in space with a little dog named Curly aboard, gave the world another convincing glimpse of Russian technical prowess today.

The Soviet Union's second earth satellite roared aloft about 11:38 p. m. EST Saturday. Data released by the Russians indicated it was propelled by a powerful new ballistic missile.

The announcement brought also a renewal of demands that this country speed up its missile and satellite programs to overtake the Russians. But Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy and other officials indicated they expect little or no change in this country's present schedule.

The fact gave the Russians another first—the first live space traveler, a Spitz-type female dog named Kudryavka, which is Russian for Curly.

Recordings of her breathing, heart beat and blood pressure, transmitted to earth in a coded radio hissing sound, will supply information on the hazards men would face in space travel.

Radio reports from the orbiting satellite indicated that Curly was alive and in good condition as Sputnik II shot round the world once every 103.7 minutes at 17,000 miles an hour.

There also were hints the little animal may be parachuted safely back to earth before the new satellite plunges back into the atmosphere and is destroyed.

The Moscow announcement described Sputnik II as the third stage of the rocket which launched it into space. Total weight of the apparatus, which astonished some scientists, was given as 1,120 pounds.

An accurate orbit for the new satellite still had not been calculated, but residents of the United States were expected to be sighting Sputnik II before long. It is traveling substantially the same pattern as its predecessor, but is taking a little bit longer for each circuit.

Dr. Fred L. Whipple, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., said the new satellite "should be visible very soon, as an evening object in United States latitudes."

Whipple said it also should begin making morning passes over the United States "in a few days."

Scientists and radio amateurs began picking up the now-familiar beep-beeps shortly after Sputnik II was launched. The new satellite was transmitting on the same frequencies as Sputnik I did—on 20 and 40 megacycles.

Sputnik I—the 14 pound pioneer earth satellite—the "Reds" sent into space Oct. 4—still is circling the earth on a lower and faster orbit. The batteries in the original satellite died about three weeks after it went up.

Moscow radio said Sputnik II swings 1,056 miles out into space in the farthest extent.

One broadcast said the new satellite is built to stay up longer than Sputnik I, "despite a considerable increase of the weight of the scientific and measurement equipment, which amounts to over half a ton."

"The second satellite was given a greater velocity in its flight at the time of reaching its orbit, with a view of prolonging its life," the announcement said.

British scientist Kenneth Gatlif, vice chairman of the British Interplanetary Society, called the accomplishment "simply fantastic."

hinted the dog may parachute safely back to earth.

The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda said that Soviet scientists may send apes up in future satellites to study biological effects of space travel.

Pravda added that such rapidly breeding small creatures as rodents, millisks and insects also may be sent aloft. This, the article said, will give a "good possibility for genetic studies."

In another technological claim, the Soviet government announced that it had put into operation "the largest passenger aircraft in the world," powered by four prop-jet engines. The announcement said the plane can transport 120 passengers from Moscow to New York in 10 to 12 hours.

The Russians originally announced that Sputnik II, launched at about 7:38 a.m. yesterday at 11:38 p.m. Saturday EST — was in an orbit reaching 923 miles out. Later this maximum distance was revised to 1,058 miles.

The new satellite weighs 1,120.29 pounds and circles the earth in 103.7 minutes, the Russians said. The first Soviet satellite, launched Oct. 4, weighs 184 pounds, has an orbit reaching out 560 miles, moves at 16,000 miles an hour and circles the earth every 96.2 minutes.

Sputnik I, still circling although its radio now is dead, is a globe sent aloft by a three-stage rocket. Two pieces of the rocket apparently still are orbiting with it.

The second satellite described by the Russians as "the last stage of the carrier rocket" apparently is shaped like a rocket.

Both baby moons travel at an angle of 65 degrees to the equator. Sputnik I moves north to south. The direction of Sputnik II has not been stated.

One Moscow broadcast said the new satellite was built to orbit longer than its predecessor, which has completed about 500 circuits of the globe.

Instruments aboard Sputnik II were reported designed to send information about cosmic, ultra violet and X-rays, temperature

DOROTHY DIX

Join the Army, Girl, It Is a Grand Career

Dear Dorothy Dix I'm a high school junior and am giving quite a bit of thought to my career. We discuss opportunities for girls at school, and our teachers help us with our ideas. My mind has been set just one way for several years — I want to join the Women's Army Corps. People tell me this is the surest way to get a bad reputation. I don't agree at all. I understand the base is in Alabama. Could you tell me exactly where?

JUNIOR MISS

Dear J. M.: The base of the Women's Army Corps is at Fort McClellan, Alabama. It isn't the WAC that gives a girl a bad reputation. Women in the armed forces are doing splendid, patriotic work. Through the many advantages, such as travel, education and physical training, they are helping themselves as well as their country. Does this sound like the sort of thing a girl with a bad reputation would enjoy? Join up, and do your share to see that the WACs maintain a good reputation.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I've broken up with the man I dated for about a year. In the course of our friendship he gave me a beautiful pearl ring, and now refuses to take it back. I can't wear it as I'm sure this would hurt my current beau.

ALMA

Dear Alma: Make your ex-steady take it back, or send it to him. There's no sense keeping a valuable ring hidden in your dresser and it would certainly be poor taste to wear it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am engaged to a man who says he loves me and I must admit in most things he shows it. However, I can't help feeling resentful because he does not make a big fuss over me. I crave lots of attention and sometimes he takes me for granted. Maybe I'm unsure of him because I was once disappointed in love.

MERCEDES G.

Dear Mercedes: Could the former failure of Cupid to make contact with you have been due to the same cause? Perhaps you expected the young man to give you too much attention and eventually he got tired of it — as your fiancé is quite likely to do. A man likes to be fussed over occasionally, too. Don't keep your love affair too one sided.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Ever since I was 12 — six years ago — I've been in love with Olin. The only time he seems to know I'm alive is when some other girl has broken his heart. Then he comes to me to have his wounds bandaged — until the next damsel comes along. I've never known a boy who falls in and out of love so easily — but never with me.

MARIA

Dear Maria: Apparently Olin is looking for something that is right under his nose — you! No kidding will help, though you might try being less available. Let him get over one love affair by himself and he may realize what a necessary part of his life you have been.

and pressure and measurements of the earth.

The two radios send on frequencies of 40,000 and 20,000 kilocycles with wave lengths of about 7.5 and 15 meters. Beeps on one frequency were heard in Tokyo 23 minutes after the first Moscow announcement. The beep lasts three-tenths of a second and is followed by a pause of the same length.

A. A. Blagonravov, one of the Soviet Union's top scientists, said the hissing sound on the second frequency provides information about the dog's condition. He hinted the dog eventually may be ejected from the satellite to parachute back to earth. The dog is being fed artificially.

Propaganda Edge of Reds Tremendous

LONDON (AP) — British and French commentators agreed today that the launching of the second earth satellite has given the Soviet Union another tremendous propaganda victory.

There were widespread speculation that the Red scientists may be on the verge of sending a rocket all the way to the moon, perhaps within days.

Military correspondents agreed that with rockets of the little power necessary to put Sputnik II into orbit just over a thousand miles out in space, the Soviet Union could easily pelt the United States with H-bombs.

China's Red regime was quick to seize on the propaganda implications of the Soviet feat. Peiping radio asserted the new launching proved the "absolute superiority" of the Communist system over capitalism.

"The outstanding achievements of Soviet science and technology are all the more admirable compared with the repeated failure of the West to send an artificial satellite into space," said the broadcast.

London's Conservative Daily Mail called anew for a joint British-American effort, saying Sputnik II "gives an even more urgent warning to Britain and America to get together in a close scientific partnership."

In 1784 General Layette and all his descendants — forever after — were made citizens of Maryland.

could land a rocket with a sizable payload on the moon tomorrow," Gatland said.

Dr. John J. Hagen, director of the U.S. earth satellite program, found the weight of the satellite less astonishing than some of his colleagues.

"It doesn't surprise me," Hagen said, "that they were able to put that weight in orbit since they must have done the same thing before with their first satellite and the casing and the satellite were detached."

Hagen said "The thing is, we don't know how much of all their weight represents the third stage rocket casing alone and how much of it represents the satellite and its scientific equipment."

Despite the powerful thrust of the launching rockets, and the accompanying implications of advanced missile technology, it was Curly, the space-traveling dog, about which most of the speculation swirled.

She was sealed in an air-tight, air-conditioned chamber equipped with instruments to record her reactions to space flight.

Moscow said preliminary transmissions from Sputnik II indicated Kudryavka was in good condition, and Soviet scientists hinted the little animal might eventually be parachuted safely back to earth.

Hoffa Trial Delayed Until Wednesday

NEW YORK (UP) — The trial of James R. Hoffa on perjury charges was postponed today until Wednesday pending a decision by Federal Judge William B. Herlands on a motion to dismiss the indictment.

Hoffa, president-elect of the powerful International Brotherhood of Teamsters, appeared briefly in Federal Court this morning for the scheduled opening of his trial — on charges of lying to a federal racketeers grand jury. Judge Frederick Van Pelt Bryan ruled that the trial would have to wait for Herlands' decision, scheduled to be announced Wednesday morning.

Tigers Drop 3rd Game to Little Rock

The Yenger Tigers dropped their third game in a row Friday night to the powerful Bearcats of Little Rock by a score of 27 to 14.

Hope started off the scoring in the opening period with Wilson going 18 yards for the tally. McFadden added the extra point giving Hope a 7-0 lead.

The visitors came right back in the second period getting six points on a 21 yard pass play but failed to make the extra point. The Tigers wasted no time coming back on runs by McFadden, Scott and Wilson with the latter going over. Again McFadden made the extra point to put Hope out front 14 to 6 at the halftime.

But the third period was a rough one for the Hope eleven. A lateral backfired, giving the Bearcats the ball on the 30' from where they passed for a second touchdown, making the score 14 to 13. In the fourth quarter the visitors added two more tallies for the victory.

Even in losing the Tigers rolled up 450 yards rushing and 35 by passing. The Bearcats gained 430 yards rushing and completed 7 of 9 passes for 98 yards.

Outstanding for Hope were Moss, Morrison, Reed, Scott, the McFadden boys, Prater, Deloney, Jackson, Dennis, Brandon, Shaw, Rogers, Tyus, Edwards and Holyfield.

Would Play the Same Game, Mitchell Says

By ADREN COOPER
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas Coach Jack Mitchell today said that he would again call for a field goal if the Razorbacks faced the situation that came up in Saturday's rugged 7-6 battle with Texas A&M at Fayetteville.

The Porkers, behind 7-6, were on A&M's 5-yard line on fourth down with three to go for a first down. Sophomore Freddie Akers' field goal attempt was wide and Arkansas lost its last good chance to upset the nation's top-ranked football team.

"We'll continue to do the same thing again," Mitchell said, "whenever we're behind only one point late in the game and we are inside the five-yard line for a first down. It's tough to make that kind of yardage against any team when you get down close to the goal line."

"All we can do is play percentage football. Akers had kicked 14 and 15 straight from 20 yards out in practice. He'll win a lot of games for Arkansas with field goals."

The loss was the second of the season for the Hogs. Coupled with the loss to Texas, it left them with nothing more than a slim mathematical chance at a tie for the Southwest Conference championship. Their conference mark now is 2-2; the season record 5-2.

"It was one of the hardest fought football games I've ever witnessed," Mitchell said of the Arkansas A&M struggle. "And I'm very proud of the way our boys performed."

"There probably were fewer

Laneburg and Bodcaw Play Tuesday

Coach Defoy Butchfield's Laneburg cagers will open their 1957-58 basketball season Tuesday night, when they take on the Bodcaw Jr. Girls, Senior girls and Senior boys, at Laneburg.

Laneburg will enter the county tournament at Bodcaw and possibly one or two invitational tournaments this season. Last season, the senior boys won second place in the county at Cale; the senior girls grabbed the No. 2 spot in the Willisville Invitational, second place in the county at Cale and the Sportsmanship Trophy; the Junior boys won first place in the Emmet Invitational and won the District title at Dierks. Winning the District sent the Junior boys to the State tournament at Harrisburg where they were eliminated in the first round.

mistakes on either side than in any game we've been in this year."

The Arkansas coach said that he was "not really worried about our defense because A.O. is not the explosion-type football team—just strong physically. We felt sure that if we could limit them to two, three and sometimes four yards a play they would be unable to march down the field and score. It was just survival of the fittest."

"Our boys really played a good football game. At the end I felt they had nothing left to give."

Arkansas was able to contain Texas A&M's mighty John Crow and other Aggie backs—especially in the last half. The total offense yardage was about the same for each team.

Mitchell apparently devised only one offensive maneuver, especially for the Aggies. The backs "overshifted" on most plays during Arkansas touchdown drive.

On an overshift to the right, the left halfback and the fullback and right half were lined up farther to the right.

"We did this because they had two big tackles on our ends," Mitchell said. "We felt that our ends wouldn't be able to hold those big men for very long so we had to get there in a hurry on off-tackle and outside plays."

The Hogs waited until they were in Texas A&M territory before trying the maneuver and it worked pretty well during the scoring drive.

Of the upcoming Rice game, Mitchell said: "They got beat by Clemson last week and we know they'll be trying to rebound and make a good showing in Houston this week. That'll make it mighty tough for us."

CHAPTER XXIV

Dave halted with the backs of his hands pressed against his hips. "Quinn, we've made a mistake. I'd like to talk it over."

"That's enough sick talk. I've been livin' under the will of Blue-ett Sharadin for a couple of years. He ain't God — an' it won't be much longer now."

The blood was showing on Dave's temples in spite of his bronze. He had brought himself here in an attempt to concentrate his troubles, to meet them and somehow best them, and Quinn was laying insult on him thickly. After his meeting with Bray this was too much to endure. Yet the only signs of his tenseness were the lines that spread about his mouth. He still spoke quietly:

"Maybe you want a fight — you want to spread blood over the hills."

"Not me. It's you that's got the marks of a fighter all over."

He searched Quinn for a moment, saw no softening in his outraged features. "Maybe you still got it wrong," Dave told him evenly. "Block S is tired of seeing its beef eaten by the wolves. They'd like to work out some way that would be fair to the miners and shopkeepers and others generally."

"What would a Sharadin call fair?"

"Whoever butchers beef should pay for it. Block S is willing to sell for the prices you're paying."

Raul Quinn shook his head. "I'm not killing your beef. Nor selling it. I buy from the little six-cow outfits. The kind you mean to drive to the wall. You trail your stuff to La Paz. Wolf Creek would choke on Sharadin beef."

It was hard. It was flat. Dave stepped to the bar. He thrust aside the barrel of Quinn's shotgun, his hand already in Quinn's oiled-down hair. He gave the man's head a vicious jerk, pulling him down across the bar-top. He used both hands now, crackling Quinn's skull repeatedly against the damp pine counter. When the man went limp under his hand he stepped away, wiping the hair oil from his fingers onto another man's jacket.

"Anyone else feel like ramming the peace pipe down my throat?" he asked cryptically. There was no reply and would be none, so now Dave moved to the door.

At the door he delivered a sober edict. "My father took these hills from the Mohaves. I fought for them and saw my friends killed in the fight. Eliott has made his mistakes, and so has Kains. So I came hoping you'd see I meant to play square. Now I'll tell you something. We're not dividing land with anyone. The man found beside a dead steer is going to pay full price."

There was a snarl across a miner's face. "What's that mean?"

A hang rope for him that's caught?"

"That would be the way most outfits would settle, and nobody would blame them. Block S will be satisfied to deliver the man to La Paz. He'll face a jury."

Dave cut back toward the door leaving silence behind him. Then he saw Eben Browne still leaning against the stairway.

"Wait a minute, Dave. If you want to see the girl upstairs — Sherry — she's moved out."

"Oh?" Dave answered.

"Went with Prole. He needed a woman to care for his daughter, and I guess she was lookin' for a job."

The words sank into Dave, rapping against his brain. As he recrossed the boardwalk toward his horse he was puzzling why it had to work out like this.

Fate at least might have allowed him a better hand than this. The hour had come when Prole must be turned from Block S. Kains had deliberately forestalled a showdown last night in order to force the move against Prole. Kains had been waiting for this break. It wasn't fair that Sherry should be thrust upon the scene.

He stepped into his saddle with fagot cutting him deeply. They he realized that a man was not judged solely by the cords he held. The straightness with which he played them was the chief consideration. Prole must be driven from the Block S, no matter where Sherry stood.

When Dave reached the high point on his trail he was still brooding over Prole and paid no attention to Wolf Creek splashing blow him. He rode on before a certain jarring idea caused him to draw in the gray. He reined quickly about, backtracking his with the decline of vaudeville. This has been, by and large, a blessing to the listening public. But it has been a bit hard on the man with a little music in his soul who can express it only by bird whistles or playing a musical saw. He no longer has an audience.

Although he is generally sympathetic to the ego vagaries of amateurs, Mack finds some of the trail.

What he was thinking seemed to make sense — for five miles hill rose after hill with good soil between, waiting only for moisture. A man might alter the bed of the stream.

After Dave left the saloon Raul Quinn lifted his battered head from the bar-top. He was not too proud of himself at this particular moment. Perhaps if the Brays had not arrived this morning rehashing all the bad feelings on this range he might have listened receptively to Dave.

"You hear the crusty way he put it?" a Wolf Creek miner spoke resentfully.

"Believe what you want," Quinn told this man not too gently. "I'm not your keeper. But if we've got any sense we won't get mixed up with this. I keep remembering something Sharadin said. They won that land away from the Mohaves. Paid for it in sweat and blood. Whatever fightin' Lou Bray's done has been with his jaw."

acts painful to listen to even in auditions.

"I must say I get a little weary of people who make music by hitting themselves on the head while their mouth is open," he confessed. "And rock 'n' roll groups that can neither rock nor roll... and kitchen bands made up of housewives beating on pots and pans... Or people who want to show how they can play 'Ave Maria' on the valves of a steam radiator."

Many present day stars found the amateur hour program a showcase and springboard to fame. They include Frank Sinatra, Paul Winchell, Monica Lewis, Vera-Ellen, and opera baritone Robert Merrill.

But Mack is the first to admit that picking a potential star isn't easy.

"One of the greatest talents we ever had on the show was Frank Sinatra," he recalled, "but he had a rough time with us. He was a
